2. On 25 August 1951, the Siegfried Kaserne was occupied by about 800 troops, primarily recruits, who wore black-bordered black epaulets. There were antennas on almost all of the roofs of the barracks buildings and wires led from them to a patch of woods northwest of the barracks installation. Telegraph poles, about 5 meters high, were erected in the training area west of Gueterfelder Damm, opposite the barracks installation. No training activity was noticed on 24 and 25 August.
3. On 25 August 1951, the Ludendorff Kaserne quartered 500 to 600 troops, primarily recruits, who wore black-bordered black epaulets with signal insignia. Antennas of various types were noticed on the roofs of the barracks buildings. Soviet civilians were billeted in the apartment houses situated between the Siegfried Kaserne and the Ludendorff Kaserne. *

25X1A * [REDACTED] Comment. The information and the [REDACTED] mentioned confirm that the three barracks installations Stahnsdorf quarter signal units of the GORC. See
